

HEC 226: Child Development

Basic theories, research and principles of physical, cognitive, language, social and emotional development of children from the prenatal period through adolescence. Includes observation and classroom processes.

Course Student Learning Outcomes

- Articulate normal growth and development using theories and principles of child development
- Express verbally and in writing how culture, environment and heredity influence children's development

Credits: 4

Prerequisites: WR 115 RD 115 MTH 20 Equivalent placement test scores also accepted.

Program: Parenting Education & Family Life